

One in Thirty

In a 2015 study, Bartonella DNA was present in the bloodstream of approximately one out of 30 donors from a major blood bank in South America.

Due to testing insensitivities, some negatives may have been false-negatives. This study documents for the first time that Bartonella bacteremia occurs in asymptomatic blood donors.

lymestats.org